

Essentials of Good Regulatory Compliance

The R E A C T Principles

H Pieterse
M G de Jong

Essentials of Good Regulatory Compliance
The React Principles

© H Pieterse/M G de Jong
© Profess

Published by
Profess B.V.
Heerhugowaard, Netherlands

July 2007

All rights reserved.

No part of this document may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system, or transmitted, in any form or by any means, electronic, photocopying, recording, or otherwise without the express written permission of the publisher. This publication is sold subject to the condition that it shall not, by way of trade or otherwise, be lent, re-sold, hired out or otherwise circulated without the publisher's prior consent in any form other than that in which it is published and without a similar condition including this condition being imposed on the subsequent purchaser.

Koninklijke Bibliotheek Den Haag
ISBN 978-90-804771-7-9

Every effort has been made to ensure that the information reflected in this document is accurate at the time of writing. Neither the author nor the publisher accepts any liability for injury, damages, or losses arising from materials published in this report.

Essentials for Good Regulatory Compliance

The R E A C T Principles

René Descartes believed that common sense was (supposedly) everywhere. Although often tried and found to fail, regulating, whether by way of laws or operating procedures, for every potential and possible eventuality is a foolish enterprise. Such desires to want to over regulate everything in sight shows a major distrust by the lawmaker, government or company of the human ability to reason and think. Compliance therefore entails the need to understand the basic essentials of rules and regulations and evaluating and analysing how best to apply them rationally and reasonably to the overall business. In essence, it requires the use of common sense and the ability to reason.
